(Neurosis album) Divine Stone is the third studio album by American extreme metal band Neurosis. It was released on September 5, 2012, and is the follow-up to the band's critically acclaimed 2009 album, Pain of Mind. The album was produced by Steve Albini and features a choir, a brass section and traditional instruments. Background In 2009, Neurosis released its first album since the departure of guitarist Scott Kelly in 2003. The album, called Pain of Mind, became the band's first release since the band's split with Roadrunner Records in 1999 and established them as one of the leading acts in the new wave of US heavy metal. It also marked the début of the band's vocalist/bassist/keyboardist/frontman Scott Kelly with the band. Kelly took on a larger role as songwriter and vocalist, with his only hand in songwriting on the album being the "exceptionally personal" "Whiteness Is the Racial Disease", from which the album took its title. Allmusic gave the album a 4-star review, noting, "...it was refreshing to hear Scott Kelly vocalize as he had the first time they met 20 years before. Now, he's a full-fledged member in the writing process as well, and the man's got a pretty decent ear for a song." The album also appeared on numerous year-end critics' lists. By the time of the album's release, the band continued to tour and complete a worldwide tour with Tool, ending in 2012, though Kelly would become increasingly inactive in songwriting and general activity with the band. During this time, Neurosis would release two more studio albums, the 2012 EP Cement and 2014's Silence. Meanwhile, the lead-vocalist did record a solo EP with three tracks recorded in 2002-2003; these songs were recorded not long after the breakup of Tool, though the songs featured on the release were reworked during the brief split with Neurosis. Neurosis went on hiatus in 2015 until 2017, when Kelly began to write again; by that time, guitarist David Blaine and percussionist Tony Reedus were the only original members remaining. Recording and production In 2009, bassist/vocalist/keyboardist Scott Kelly and drummer Clint Ndiegen recorded demos for their next album at Red Sea Sound in Ashville, Ohio, as well as a handful of other tracks at Godcity Studios in Duluth, Georgia
