After I get data, I will get the data to a database using database(I am using MySQL database). So the question is: I will only get data for one specific time, is there any way I can prevent getting duplicate entry for the same vehicle to database, please answer clearly. For example, I am using a GP/Cad Combo, the combination can be full, half or open, but the code will remain same. I will use a datetime script to get data at a specific time, so I will need to prevent getting duplicate entry. But I am not getting the way to stop getting duplicate entries. Thanks in advance. A: You will need to choose a unique column for each record. This could be either the "type" or the "date". When you retrieve the data, check the unique column value against the data you have retrieved. If it is not the same, discard the record. If you don't choose a unique column, and someone steals your computer, then you can potentially have a race condition whereby multiple people query for the same data at the same time. Also, do not use a timestamp. This is not a reliable way to know when something happened. Plus you are broadcasting a time to the world. If your requirements are as you state them, then you need a unique column. The most straight forward one is to have type. Since a type column never changes, you will always be using that column to ensure uniqueness. Another option is to use the date, but I don't think this would work for your requirements. While it could be used as the unique key, it is not always the only piece of information known about a car.
