This for-browser app utilizes Adobe Sensei AI to match, analyze, and understand the images that you're working with, streamlining a range of adjustment allowing you to non-destructively correct in an automated, intuitive way. As a result, you'll be able to easily make a broad range of changes to your image which will automatically set the values on your image to compensate for unwanted changes, such as noise reduction or highlights. Additionally, once you've completed a few edits to an image, Photoshop's Navigator panel will allow you to preview non-destructive edits as a test out, saving you time and allowing you to see how the adjustment will look with your image style. Tools can be shared with co-workers in a simple way, and you'll be able see a live rendering within your browser application. Any changes made by your co-worker will take place in real-time in your file, allowing you to make sure the edits are perfect before showing them off. Quickly remove unwanted objects with a single click and replace them with more-or-less the same content with the precision of a vector tool, such as the polygon tool. You can even utilize Text Boxes, Type tool, or even Sketch tools within the browser.

Beijing--September 3, 2018--SanDisk Corporation, a global leader in flash storage solutions, today announced that SanDisk® SecureAccess™ SSD solid-state drives (SSDs) with the world's fastest available speeds, will be featured on the Dell XPS 13 2-in-1 Laptop. These Dell XPS 13 models, which are powered by the latest NVIDIA® GeForce® MX150 GPU with MaxQ™ Architecture, marry the state-of-the-art graphics capability of NVIDIA MaxQ with the proven reliability of SanDisk's fast SSD solutions to deliver a Windows 10 laptop with wicked performance and blistering storage speeds. The SanDisk SecureAccess SSD is the world's first industry-ready secure NVM to deliver SSD performance at the same affordable price point as a traditional 2.5 inch SATA SSD. In addition, SanDisk SecureAccess provides industry-leading security focused encryption of data stored on the drive to protect against data loss. "The key benefit of using sensei AI for making selections in Photoshop is that its algorithms are fundamentally different, producing more precisely tuned results than current selection tools available in Photoshop," said John Nackman, chief scientist at Adobe. "Not only is it faster, but also it's able to 'learn' from the picture as you select. This means you don't have to start over if you are missing an object in the photo. We now have a neural network-based selection tool that is accurate and easy to use." In 2018, we will see users can take advantage of Content-Aware Fill, which will replace the tedious process of removing and replacing objects. Content-Aware Fill intelligently fills in missing or undesired features in your photos, allowing you to make it look like the image was never edited. After you choose Content-Aware Fill, the tool will use Adobe Sensei to identify and fill-in the item, and the filled-in content will blend seamlessly and become part of the image. Adjustments such as color, detail, contrast, and saturation are applied to the content, while the original image remains untouched.
